OSCAR winner Jamie Foxx is being eclipsed by co-star Channing Tatum, and sources say he's not happy!

The two actors have worked nonstop to promote the film, but Foxx has played second fiddle to rising star Tatum, who's been deluged with questions about his skyrocketing career and new baby girl.

"Fans at the premiere in Washington, D.C., were practically shoving Jamie out of the way to get a picture with Channing," a source told The ENQUIRER.

"Jamie isn't used to that. He's usually the star of the show wherever he goes."

Heartbreaking reason Travolta MISSED FUNERAL

MORE than four years after the tragic death of his teenage son, John Travolta is still too overwhelmed by grief to attend a funeral.

That's the REAL reason the "Pulp Fiction" star was a no-show at his close pal James Gandolfini's celebrity-packed memorial at The Cathedral Church of Saint John the Divine in New York City on June 27.

"He's still despondent over Jett's death, and the last thing he wants to do is see a casket," said a source.

JETT TRAVOLTA WAS JUST 16 when he died in January 2009 after suffering a seizure at the family's vacation home in The Bahamas.

While friends and family were paying their last respects to the "Sopranos" star, who died of a heart attack in an Italian hotel room on June 19, John, 59, was photographed with soccer star David Beckham in London, where he was promoting pricey Breitling watches.

But two days earlier, on June 25, the actor paid tribute to Gandolfini at a British Film Institute event in Travolta's honor. In an interview, he also vowed to look after the family of his late friend. Gandolfini is survived by his second wife, Deborah, and their infant daughter, Liliana. He also has a 14-year-old son, Michael, from his first marriage.

John told a reporter:

"My goal is to make sure his family is OK...We'll just make sure they're taken care of."

The actors hail from the same area of New Jersey and had worked together in the films "Lonely Hearts," "Get Shorty" and "The Taking of Pelham 123."

Although John missed the funeral, he called Deborah to offer his condolences.

"John's willing to do anything he can for the sake of Jim's kids," said the source. "He's heartbroken."

There's been bad blood brewing between Marcy and Deborah for years

THE body of James Gandolfini wasn't even cold before a bitter battle over his $70 million fortune exploded!

Insiders say that the mothers of the "Sopranos" star's two young children – his ex-wife Marcy and his widow Deborah – are at war over the 51-year-old actor's estate.

"There's been bad blood brewing between Marcy and Deborah for years and it's finally burst into public," a source told The ENQUIRER.

Deborah's always hated Marcy for her savage attacks on James during their divorce. Marcy accused James of disappearing for days at a time to do drugs and of carrying on extramarital affairs with a number of women.

"And Marcy has thought Deborah was nothing but a gold digger who latched onto James after they split up."

The Emmy-winning actor died on June 19 of an apparent heart attack on the bathroom floor of his $671-a-night suite at Rome's posh Boscolo Exedra hotel.

As The ENQUIRER has reported, Gandolfini had downed a gut-busting meal and at least eight alcoholic beverages before telling his 14-year-old son Michael that he felt ill.

Sources told us that the 6-foot-1 actor – who's publicly admitted to battling booze and drug addictions – had ballooned to nearly 300 pounds. And before leaving on his overseas trip, he'd been warned by a doctor that he had to stop drinking and go on a strict diet.

GANDOLFINI IS SURVIVED BY Michael, his son with Marcy, and Liliana, his 8-month-old daughter with Deborah. He and Deborah divorced in 2002, and she began dating Deborah's former talent agent and model, They married in 2008.

"Both Marcy and Deborah are determined to do what's best for their children," added an insider.

"There's no question Michael will be well taken care of, but Marcy wants to make sure that Deborah isn't going to get all James' money for their daughter.

In addition to working steadily in films and on Broadway since "The Sopranos" ended its six-season run in 2007, Gandolfini also produced several TV projects. He'd completed a big-screen comedy and a crime drama, and was attached to the new HBO drama "Criminal Justice" before he died.

At stake in the estate battle are homes in Los Angeles and New Jersey, plus million-dollar properties in Manhattan and other real estate holdings. Gandolfini also had stakes in several restaurants.

ZAHARA'S BRAVE FIGHT

During a meal in Madrid with dad Brad, an inhaler could be seen in Zahara's chair

Jolie-Pitt

BATTLING ASTHMA

BRAVE Zahara Jolie-Pitt is facing her latest health crisis with the same plucky determination she's shown since mom Angelina first rescued her from an Ethiopian orphanage when she was 6 months old.

Now 8, Zahara seems to be battling a chronic breathing problem.

DURING A RECENT MEAL

in Madrid with her dad Brad Pitt and her sister, Shiloh, a Ventolin inhaler could clearly be seen on the seat of Zahara's chair. The inhaler is typically used to treat asthma attacks, say experts. "Brad and Angie insist she has an inhaler with her at all times," said a source. "If she doesn't and she has an attack, it could be serious."

Zahara's health drama began before she even landed on U.S. soil in 2005. Her birth parents died from AIDS, and it was uncertain whether or not she'd been infected when Angelina adopted her. Thankfully, she later tested negative for the AIDS virus.

And just hours after arriving in the States, Angelina rushed the tiny infant to specialists to be treated for salmonella poisoning – a potentially fatal bacterial infection that causes diarrhea and fever. At 6 months old, suffering from dehydration and malnutrition, she weighed just 9 pounds.

Later that year, she recovered from rickets, a softening of the bones caused by a severe vitamin D deficiency. Vitamin D deficiency has also been linked to cancer, cardiovascular disease and diabetes in older adults – and moderate to severe asthma in children.

"Zahara is a real fighter," added the source. "Brad and Angie feel very blessed to have her."

ANGELINA JOLIE has shriveled to 92 pounds, sources say, and fiancé Brad Pitt is terrified that if she has surgery to remove her ovaries, she'll die!

After the 38-year-old actress underwent a preventative double mastectomy and breast reconstruction, Brad put on a brave face to the world and for the sake of their six children.

But insiders tell The ENQUIRER that behind the scenes the actor is a basket case – studying medical research that shows the surgery increases Angie's risk of heart disease, osteoporosis and, ironically, cancer, and it can lead to premature death.

"This is Brad's worst nightmare," said a source close to the couple, adding that Angelina's workaholic ways could also contribute to health woes.

"Angelina's been working nonstop on a film project and humanitarian causes for the United Nations, and it's taken a serious toll on her.

"She weighs less than she did when she was 16, and Brad's afraid that when it's time to have her ovaries removed, she won't be strong enough. He's worried sick that she could die!"

ANGELINA RECENTLY REVEALED

she'd undergone the double mastectomy after learning she carries the faulty BRCA1 gene that sharply increases her risk of developing both breast and ovarian cancer. Her mother, Marcheline Bertrand, died of ovarian cancer, and sources say Angelina plans to have her ovaries surgically removed. But medical experts warn it carries serious risks.

Dr. Mary Jane Minkin, clinical professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Yale University School of Medicine, told The ENQUIRER: "At our BRAC clinic at Yale, we recommend removing the ovaries and taking estrogen replacement therapy. Women who have their ovaries removed and don't take estrogen are at significant increased risk of heart disease, osteoporosis and dementia, as well as premature death."

But the hormone replacement therapy carries serious risks as well.

"Taking an estrogen supplement alone leads to a higher risk of uterine cancer," Dr. Herman Kattlove, a Los Angeles-based oncologist and former spokesperson for the American Cancer Society, told The ENQUIRER.

"If progesterone is given along with the estrogen, the risk of uterine cancer is avoided, but there is a higher risk of breast cancer."

With all those issues to consider,

"Brad believes the surgery to remove Angelina's ovaries is a double-edged sword," noted the source.

Adding to Brad's worries, Angelina is keeping a hectic schedule despite dropping

As The ENQUIRER has reported, the Oscar-winning actress collapsed during a mission to war-torn Africa in March.

He had the prop guys prepping packs for the hike fill Matt’s with solid metal bricks, weighing about 50 pounds.

The other guys’ packs had lightweight padding, but George told them to pretend they felt super-heavy.” When the guys strapped on the packs, Matt grouched: “What the hell’s in here, rocks?!” By day’s end, he was sweating profusely, complaining his back and shoulders hurt. “The guys kept telling him they felt just fine – even though they don’t work out,” said the source. “After the scenes were shot, Matt dropped his pack and everyone burst out laughing when the metal bricks tumbled out; then went hysterical when George, John and Bill displayed the plastic bubble-wrap that had filled their packs. # DEMI MOORE'S 'TWISTED' SECRET to become yoga teacher!

Troubled star quitting Hollywood

DEMI MOORE is flexing some new skills. The 50-year-old "Striptease" actress has decided to ditch her Hollywood acting career after becoming a certified yoga teacher.

Demi has immersed herself in the study of Kundalini yoga, a branch of the ancient Indian discipline that focuses on raising individual consciousness through breathing techniques and physical poses. "Demi is acutely aware that her star has faded in Hollywood," said a source. "Acting offers aren't coming in and, at her age, Demi realistically knows she's considered over the hill in youth-obsessed Hollywood."

"SHE ALSO CREDITS KUNDALINI WITH HELPING HER recover from the emotional issues surrounding her drug-induced seizure and hospitalization last year."

As The ENQUIRER reported in February 2012, the star suffered an emotional breakdown as she faced turning 50 in the wake of her split from ex-hubby Ashton Kutcher. "Yoga has been a lifesaver

Demi in yoga class with beau Will Hanigan for Demi, so through teaching, she hopes to give back and share the wisdom she's acquired," explained the source. The troubled mom of three was encouraged to pursue certification by her actor friend Russell Brand, a Kundalini devotee, as well as her new 30-year-old beau, Australian pearl diver and yoga follower Will Hanigan.

"She's been going to two-hour classes five days a week for months, so it was a logical next step," said the source, who added that Demi studied at Nine Treasures Yoga in Los Angeles, completing the program in May.

"Demi is finally finding her footing again and she credits yoga with getting her back on track," noted the source. "She's absolutely committed to living a healthy life, both spiritually and physically."

Sources say the "Two and a Half Men" star, 35, and Mila, 29, fell in love with England's cultured lifestyle after spending quality time there while Mila has been filming a movie.

"MILA IS THRILLED TO LEAVE Los Angeles because she doesn't think it's big enough for her, Ashton and (his ex-wife) Demi Moore," said an insider.

"She's also been pushing Ashton to cool his friendship with Demi's daughters, and she's sure living across the pond will take care of that."

Ashton has been jetting into London regularly to visit Mila, and they seem to

"They enjoy afternoon walks through Hampstead Heath and Sunday supper at a pub," said the insider. "They spend most nights in, hosting dinner parties or watching movies."

As The ENQUIRER has reported, Ashton struck up a bromance with British billionaire Richard Branson after plunking down $250,000 to reserve a spot on Branson's Virgin Galactic suborbital spacecraft.

THROUGH BRANSON, the "That '70s Show" lovers had Princess Beatrice, the 24-year-old daughter of Prince Andrew and Sarah Ferguson.

"Princess Bea has promised to introduce them to London social life," said the insider.

Betrayed lover's devastating

THE ex-mistress of “To Catch a Predator” host Chris Hansen is finally breaking her silence about their steamy affair – two years after they were exposed by The ENQUIRER!

In a bombshell “open letter” penned exclusively for The ENQUIRER, sexy TV reporter Kristyn Caddell blasts her former illicit lover as a cad who not only lied to his wife but to her as well. She blames him for ruining her once promising career.

Caddell, 32, says she met the 53-year-old “Dateline NBC” correspondent in a Palm Beach, Fla., bar in March 2011, and he led her to believe his nearly 20-year marriage was on its last legs, so he was free to date.

“Chris told me a divorce was inevitable and the wedding ring on his finger was all but for show,” Caddell recalls in her scathing letter.

“Over the next several months, our friendship evolved into a whirlwind romance. As far as I was concerned, none of it was being done secretly or concealed from the public.”

HANSEN FLEW HER ALL OVER

the country, and the couple stayed in “the finest hotels,” according to her letter. They had dinner and mingled “with many of his colleagues,” and Caddell supplied The ENQUIRER photos of the two of them together in public places.

“He would even speak with my family on the phone,” she wrote.

“Chris gave me no reason at all to believe our relationship was a secret, and I trusted him implicitly.”

Hansen with his wife, Mary

The original ENQUIRER story that broke the news of Chris Hansen's affair

Caddell claims she didn't learn Hansen was lying about his marriage until just before The ENQUIRER's exclusive report of the cheating scandal was published in our July 11, 2011, issue.

“My trust in Chris was shattered...three days before we were thrust into an international scandal by The National ENQUIRER, and I learned that our relationship was not as it was presented to me,” she wrote.

At the time, we obtained video footage of Hansen and Caddell heading into The Ritz-Carlton hotel in Manalapan, Fla., for a romantic dinner.

The couple then returned to her Palm Beach apartment and was photographed leaving Caddell's place the following morning.

After The ENQUIRER expose, Caddell says she ended her “physical relationship” with Hansen but decided to “maintain contact with him and weather the storm” together.

“There was nothing that could prepare me for the awful turn my life was about to take,” she continues. “As the scandal raged out of control on the Internet, TV and print (media), I was approached by dozens of journalists, each giving me the opportunity to comment...

“It was against my better judgment to take the harsh media scrutiny lying down and not defend myself against the salacious stories, but I trusted Chris when he advised me it was in both of our best interests to remain silent about our relationship.”

Caddell says Hansen promised to help her find a new job if she lost her position as news reporter at WPTV in West Palm Beach. But the station eventually fired her, and she's had a tough time find

SHE SAYS THAT “AT LEAST A DOZEN BIG MARKET STATIONS” interviewed her but ultimately decided not to hire her because of “all the negative press surrounding me.”

Finally, she landed a job with a news station in Las Vegas, but she resigned in late June.

“At this point in my career, I feel it's more important to finally set the record straight about the stigma that's followed me for the past two years than to stay in a position that's several steps back for someone with my level of experience,” she writes.

Caddell also offers an apology for “the pain my relationship with Chris has caused both of our families” as well as the negative attention it brought her former employers in West Palm Beach.

“I don't wish any harm on Chris,” she concludes, “yet our affair has essentially destroyed my professional career.”

But a source now says Caddell's coming clean could also destroy Hansen's marriage.

“Chris has denied the affair since day one, and I said I believed him,” said a source.

“The last thing he wants is for her to find out the truth about his affair with Kristyn, because to file for divorce, he there was any fallout from the scandal. “This will all blow over and everything in your life will be fine – your career, your reputation, your livelihood – everything will be fine.”

I'm sincerely sorry for the pain my relationship with Chris has caused both of our families, and I apologize for the negative attention

In an astonishingly frank open letter to The ENQUIRER, Kristyn Caddell lays bare the truth about former lover Chris Hansen, and explains that the two-timing “To Catch a Predator” host was lying both to her and to his wife

PERSONAL ENQUIRER:

Two years ago a scandal involving the National ENQUIRER and reporter Kristyn Caddell was exposed. At the time, I desperately wanted to tell my side of the story. As a news reporter, protect my livelihood and my family, and salvage my reputation. I was against my better judgment to take the salacious stories, working lying down and not defend myself against the salacious stories, but I trusted Chris when he advised me it was in both of our best interests to remain silent about our relationship. “Don't worry about anything in your life will be fine – your career, your reputation, your livelihood – everything will be fine.”

In hindsight, putting that much trust in Chris proved to be the most damaging mistake of my life, particularly in my professional career. But, why wouldn't I trust him? He was Chris Hansen – a highly respected journalist, responsible for bringing down child predators, identity thieves and even our national TV. As a follow-up, I was given a long list of achievements that took me many years to achieve. I was in awe of his accomplishments and his many accomplishments.

Read the ENTIRE LETTER @ www.NationalEnquirer.com

Over the course of the next several months, our friendship evolved into a whirlwind romance, and so far as I was concerned, none of it was being done secretly or concealed from the public. In fact, Chris and I were so open with our relationship that I was confused as to how something that I already thought to be public knowledge could have exploded into tabloid fiction. Chris was flying me all over the country, putting me up in the finest hotels, having dinner and mingling with many of his colleagues, having me photographed taken together in public places. He would even speak with my family on the phone. Chris gave me no reason at all to believe our relationship was a secret and I trusted him implicitly.

My trust in Chris was shattered on Monday, June 27, 2011 – three days before we were thrust into an international scandal by this very publication, the National ENQUIRER, and I learned that our relationship was not as it was presented to me.

I ended my physical relationship with Chris, but, at 30-years-old, I had never experienced anything that hurtful or publicly humiliating, and felt like my best option was to maintain contact with him and weather the storm together. There was nothing that could prepare me for the awful turn my life was about to take. As the scandal raged out of control on the Internet, TV and print traditions, I was approached by dozens of journalists, each giving me the opportunity to comment, but I trusted Chris' advice and remained silent.

I take full responsibility for the choices I made to get into this situation, and acknowledge I made many mistakes that I will forever regret.

Since losing my job in Fla., I've interviewed at dozens of television stations across the country. Sadly, there have been a few news stations willing to give me a chance, but in lieu of dialogue about my skills as a reporter and position the journalism, I've been asked to address my number of emotional tears that are swirling about me and Chris as the internet, most of which are completely false.

Several months ago, I took a job at a Las Vegas news station. It was the only news station I could find to offer me a contract, and by at least a dozen other big market stations after going through the interview process they could not hire me because of all the negative press surrounding me. Although grateful for that opportunity in Las Vegas, I resigned from that position last week because at this point in my career I feel it's more important to finally set the record straight about the stigma that's followed me for the past two years than to stay in a position that's several steps back for someone with my level of experience.

I've worked tirelessly to be successful in my career and that's suffered greatly because of the mistakes I've made in my personal life – and I wrote this open letter to own up to my mistakes and to apologize.

I'm sincerely sorry for the pain my relationship with Chris has caused both of our families, and I apologize for the negative attention that this brought to my former employers in West Palm Beach. I know I can't change what has happened, but I believe that being honest and taking responsibility for my part is long overdue. This was all just a chapter of my life; it does not define my job performance as a journalist.

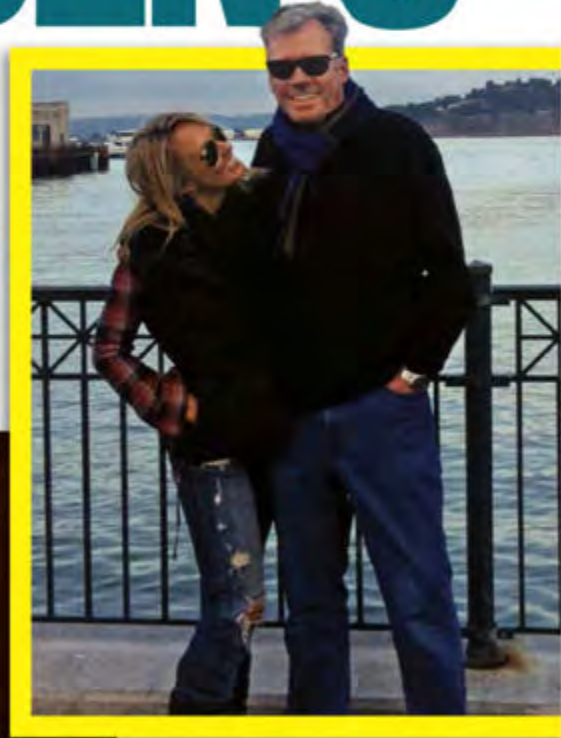

I don't wish any harm on Chris, yet our affair has essentially destroyed my professional career.

It's also a mystery to me how someone I considered to be a close friend and confidante was never the person he made himself out to be.

Sincerely,
Kristyn Caddell

A. Yes, cats can suffer from dementia similar to humans. Tootie needs a comprehensive physical exam to eliminate any other potential medical problems, including arthritis, as well as blood tests to check organ function – especially the thyroid gland. If nothing turns up, she could be suffering from Feline Cognitive Dysfunction, which has similarities to Alzheimer's.

A. Understand that this is really normal behavior, especially for a pup of his breed. Chewing is the main way for him to explore his environment. And because this is normal behavior, Turbo should not be punished for it. Instead, interrupt him with a sharp clap and give him an appropriate chew toy.

Meanwhile, do your best to "dog-proof" your home, or at least have a "safe room" where he can play. If you have to leave him alone in the house, an appropriate sized crate is the very best solution. Just be aware that a crate is NOT to be used as punishment. And don't worry, he won't pass this habit on to your other dogs and will soon outgrow it.

CLAIRE DANES and Damian Lewis play star-crossed lovers on the hit TV series "Homeland," but the real-life chemistry between them seems to have fizzled out completely!

The tension between the Emmy-winning actors is evident as the hit Showtime series shoots its third season on location in North Carolina.

Claire, 34, plays bipolar CIA agent Carrie Mathison on the show, while Damian, 42, is prisoner-of-war-turned-suspected terrorist Nick Brody.

"Claire and Damian really got along for most of the first two seasons, but lately they seem to get on each other's nerves – and then some," a source confided.

THE NEW SEASON OPENS DURING the aftermath of the horrific car bomb intelligence and prompted a global manhunt for Brody, who swears he had nothing to do with the terror attack. Lewis has already hinted that this will probably be the last season for his character.

Behind the scenes, a lot has changed for Claire in recent months. She and her hubby, actor Hugh Dancy, welcomed their first child, son Cyrus, in December, and she's now trying to juggle work with motherhood.

"As a first-time mom, she's understandably stressed out," noted a friend. "She basically just wants to get her scenes done and get back to little Cyrus. But Damian is very light-hearted, always joking around with the film crew and getting his picture taken with the locals when they're on location. And that's caused a lot of friction between him and Claire."

Producers are hoping the on-screen chemistry doesn't cause a disaster on the set, and they reworked the third season's story lines will keep their characters far apart.

"It's ironic – a lot of people fell in love with 'Homeland' because of the amazing chemistry Claire and Damian have on-camera," said the source.

"Maybe it's good they aren't working together much this season, because that chemistry is in short supply now."

The moment of the Boston Marathon explosions

AS part of an ongoing investigation, The ENQUIRER can reveal that the Boston Marathon bomber's wife is beginning to reject the strict Muslim rules forced upon her by her evil husband as her family urges her to convert back to Christianity.

The 24-year-old widow of cold-hearted fanatic Tamerlan Tsarnaev is living with her parents in their Rhode Island home, and sources say she's already changed her name from Karima Tsarnaeva back to her maiden name, Katherine Russell.

But as our exclusive ENQUIRER photo shows, Katherine still wore the traditional Muslim hijab as she carried her 3-year-old daughter Zahara around her parents' property in North Kingstown.

"Katherine's family would like her to revert to her Christian faith," said a source close to the family.

"They don't want to force it on her, but they're encouraging her, and Katherine is slowly starting to change."

THE SINGLE MOM HAS ALREADY broken from strict Muslim guidelines by wearing fingernail polish and eating at fast food restaurants, such as Chipotle, with pals, said the source.

She was widowed when Tamerlan was killed in a police shootout on April 19 – four days after he and his younger brother Dzhokhar allegedly set off bombs during the Boston Marathon. Three people were killed in the cowardly attack and 264 more were wounded, several of whom lost limbs.

Katherine has repeatedly claimed through her attorney that she knew nothing about the bombing, but sources say she remains under investigation.

"Before she fell under Tamerlan's spell, Katherine was just your average all-American girl," revealed the source. "She was happy-go-lucky, and as her teachers have noted, not particularly religious."

But she seemed to undergo a radical change after meeting Tamerlan and moving into his family home in Cambridge, Mass.

"Katherine was working 80 hours a week as a home health care aide while her husband led a secret double life that she knew nothing about," said the source. "Tamerlan browbeat and berated Katherine, calling her a slut and a prostitute for not dressing 'modestly' in accordance with the Muslim religion."

"Katherine was completely subservient to him. She covered around him."

As The ENQUIRER has reported, she was once close to her mother-in-law, Zubeidat. But after the bombings, Zubeidat made wild claims that her sons were set up and the entire event was staged.

"Katherine is now convinced that Tamerlan's mother encouraged him to commit the Boston bombing," said the source. "She believes Zubeidat is the reason that Tamerlan is dead. After hearing Zubeidat's rantings and ravings, Katherine thinks she's nuts."

Katherine refused to claim her husband's body and has severed ties to his family, added the source.

Her parents – emergency room physician Warren Russell and his wife Judith, a nurse – also released a statement saying they "never really knew" Tsarnaev.

"Little by little, Katherine is breaking away from her abusive past," said the source. "She's finally beginning to stand on her own two feet again."

SANDRA'S LOVE GIFT TO HUNKY BODYGUARD

SANDRA BULLOCK wants to make her hunky bodyguard a Hollywood star!

The Oscar-winning actress has been helping Peter Weireter – a respected former SWAT officer with the LAPD – pursue his showbiz dreams.

"Sandy loves Peter like her own dad and he's also been a great father figure to her son Louie," a source close to the screen superstar told The ENQUIRER. "And while she would hate to lose him to Hollywood, she's been getting him some pretty sweet movie deals."

"Sandra and Peter have become very close friends, so she knows what his passions are – and working in movies is one of them. She's always talking him up to her co-stars and directors."

THE 48-YEAR-OLD "MISS Congeniality" beauty has already used her star power to land Weireter an acting role in her new comedy, "The Heat," with Melissa McCarthy. She also helped him get credits in her 2009 films "The Blind Side" and "The Proposal," as well as her 2011 World Trade Center drama, "Extremely Loud & Incredibly Close."

As The ENQUIRER exclusively reported in our Jan. 7 issue, the 60-year-old silver fox – happily married to wife Toni, 57, for many years – has grown so close to Sandra's adorable 3-year-old son that the tyke has been calling him "Daddy."

"It's a double-edged sword for Sandra," said the source. "Peter's become like a member of her family, but she also gets a kick out of seeing him get movie work."

"She's encouraging him to follow his dreams, and he's taking full advantage of it."

DON'T call Sue Austin “disabled!” The talented artist has invented a jet-propelled wheelchair that tests the boundaries of physical freedom – and has transformed her into a mermaid on wheels.

“I can loop-the-loop. I can do amazing spirals. I can even fly along upside down,” said Austin, who’s from Devon, England. “Other divers can’t keep up with me.”

Austin has been confined to a wheelchair since 1996 due to a muscle-wasting disease and got the idea for her amazing wheelchair after training as a disabled diver.

“I realized there was a link,” she said. “Like a wheelchair, scuba gear extends your range of activity. But the associations attached to it are ones of excitement, adventure and something tropical, rather than tragedy, loss and limitation.”

Engineers told her that building such a chair was a pipe dream, but Austin refused to give up. With a team of diving experts, she came up with a wheelchair that has hydroplanes on the foot plates to stabilize it and help steer along with jet propulsion equipment attached to the underside.

Now when Austin dives, the only obvious scuba gear she uses is a respirator in her mouth.

“I dive in a summer dress, and when everything is in perfect balance, it’s an absolutely ecstatic experience,” she said.

Austin has staged a series of underwater shows called “Creating the Spectacle!” and performed in her wheelchair as part of the Cultural Olympiad in London last year.

She said: “Someone told me, ‘Now when I see someone in a wheelchair, I won’t think of what they can’t do, I’ll be imagining what they possibly can.’”

CHRISTIE'S HEARTACHE OVER BILLY'S BOOZING!

Joel's ex wants family TO STAGE INTERVENTION

BILLY JOEL's ex-wife Christie Brinkley is at war with his live-in girlfriend over his boozing!

The former supermodel desperately wants to stage an intervention to help the Piano Man kick the habit for good, but those closest to him refuse to get involved – and his lover, financier Alexis Roderick, believes Christie is being a “control freak,” says an insider.

The 64-year-old music superstar, who's done stints in rehab in 2002 and 2005, but denies he has a drinking problem, was spotted earlier this year drinking red wine at a Florida restaurant. Then, looking bleary-eyed, he hopped onto his motorcycle.

Scared for his life, Christie – who has remained close to the six-time Grammy winner since their 1994 divorce – began sounding the alarm.

“BILLY IS PLAYING WITH FIRE BY continuing to drink,” a friend confided to The ENQUIRER. “He's semi-retired now and plays very few concerts. Christie knows Billy, and when he's bored he turns to drinking.”

Christie has reportedly discussed Joel's drinking with their 27-year-old daughter Alexa Ray as well as Alexis, 31.

“But she can't find one person who is willing to stand up with her and stage an intervention,” said the friend.

The singer was spotted in Florida earlier this year drinking red wine, then taking off on his motorcycle

Christie and Billy have remained close since their 1994 divorce

“Alexis believes Christie may be well-meaning, but thinks she's being a control freak and that Billy can handle his drinking now. She tells Christie until she really sees a problem, let him have his glass of wine – he's earned it.

“Alexa doesn't want to confront her dad, either. She wants to maintain a good relationship. But there's a big fear that Billy's headed down a slippery slope by drinking at all.”

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

O.J. Simpson's

'LEAVE PAULA

The Juice enjoyed Paula's southern cooking

A DEFIANT cry of support for disgraced TV cook Paula Deen has come from an unlikely source – O.J. Simpson! “Leave Paula alone!” O.J. proclaimed.

The reviled football legend is so upset over the way Paula's been roundly blasted that he reached out to The ENQUIRER through his manager and told us: “Paula deserves a second chance!”

From his Nevada jail cell where he keeps up with current events on TV, O.J. is staunchly defending the be-

As the racism scandal explode around the shamed queen of southern cooking, Simpson's manager has revealed that Paula whipped up a soul-food feast for O.J. at her famous Georgia restaurant in 2002 – and he's provided The ENQUIRER with an exclusive video of their meeting.

IRONICALLY, AT THE BEGINNING of the video, before O.J. even meets Paula, he talks about everybody using the N-word at some point in their lives and how it's no big deal. When he does get to the restaurant, Paula looks like a frazzled fry cook with a bread-bag twist tie holding up her scraggly hair.

“Many people will be surprised to hear that O.J. thinks Paula is great, and he's in her corner on this issue,” after being found guilty of numerous charges after he was involved in an armed robbery at a Las Vegas hotel in September 2007.

But in 2002, the former Heisman Trophy winner – who was found not guilty of the brutal 1994 murders of his ex-wife Nicole Brown and her friend Ron Goldman – dropped by Paula's restaurant, The Lady & Sons, while he was in Savannah, Ga., to make a personal appearance at a nightclub.

“Someone in town suggested Paula's place had great soul food, and we were hungry,” Pardo recalled.

“It was about 4 in the afternoon. O.J. had to do a radio show interview at 7 p.m. and had a nightclub appearance later, so we were champing at the bit to get some good southern food.”

AS SIMPSON AND FOUR PALS, including Pardo, walked up to the front door of Paula's restaurant, a cleaning crew was carrying vacuum cleaners through the open door.

“We just followed them inside,” said Pardo. “What we didn't know was that the restaurant was closed and wouldn't open for dinner until 5.”

“The cleaning crew turned on the vacuum cleaner, and a heavy-set woman with a big smile in a white apron came over to us.

“It was Paula, but we didn't know the food!” Adam. We were just there for

On Pardo's video of the visit – pro-tells Paula: “We want to eat.”

Paula replies: “Yeah, we don't have 52” anything cooked. Can you be here at

After O.J. explains his tight schedule, Paula warns him that after one of her meals: “Y'all have to lay down after meals: “Y'all have to lay down after

O.J. hangs out with his manager Norman Pardo

Simpson's manager Norman Pardo told The ENQUIRER.

“O.J. just doesn't understand what the big deal is with Paula using the N-word in the past.

“He told me, ‘Everybody has used it. C'mon, give Paula a break. I say give her a second chance. Everybody should have a second chance. I'd like one myself!’”

But another insider points out: “This is all Paula needs to make matters worse. Having O.J. on your side during a media storm is like having screen doors on a submarine.”

Simpson, 66, is now behind bars

you eat.” Then she laughs, and says: “Y'all sit down.”

On the video, Paula introduces O.J. to her son Bobby and warns them about the noise from the cleaning crew they'll have to endure while eating. Then she asks O.J. if he'd seen her May appearance on a national talk show just days earlier. She explains that a team taped her at the restaurant, and then she headed to Chicago, where she “talked about my soul food business” on the show.

On the video, Paula is wearing a frumpy blouse under an oversize white apron. As she heads to the kitchen, she tells the staff: “I think O.J. wants collard greens.”

Pardo added: “O.J. was deeply touched by Paula's friendliness. That's why he's so disturbed about what's happening to her now?”

In the end, Paula and her staff dished up a mouthwatering feast.

“We had two tables full of food,” Pardo recalled.

“There was southern fried chicken, ribs, string beans, black-eyed peas, mashed potatoes and gravy, corn bread and biscuits, collard greens and pepper sauce, a potato casserole and fried okra.”

And O.J. clicked with Paula immediately, said another source.

“Paula told O.J. that she never believed he was guilty of killing his ex-wife,” the source said. “When she said that, O.J.'s face lit up. He knew he was on friendly ground, so he relaxed and enjoyed the food.”

While discussing Paula's recent predicament, Pardo said O.J. insisted that the potty-mouthed cook deserved a second chance and reminded him that “even Mark Fuhrman got a second chance!” During O.J.'s murder trial, Fuhrman, then an LAPD detective, denied under oath that he'd recently used the N-word. But O.J.'s defense attorney F. Lee Bailey later proved Fuhrman had lied. After leaving the LAPD, Fuhrman built a successful career as a true crime writer and media commentator.

It remains to be seen if Paula will get another chance. The N-word scandal surrounding her was triggered when The ENQUIRER dropped the bombshell that she'd admitted in a court deposition that she'd used the offensive term. The news rocked America, and her business empire has crumbled.

The Food Network, Smithfield Foods, Walmart, Target and Caesars Entertainment, which operated Paula Deen-branded restaurants at four casinos, have all cut ties with the once-beloved star.

BUT THE NEGATIVE PUBLICITY HAS also had some positive effects. Orders for her upcoming cookbook, “Paula Deen's New Testament: 250 Favorite recipes, All Lightened Up,” have soared it to No. 1 on Amazon's best-seller list, and bookings on her annual cruise have skyrocketed.

And she's still a favorite topic for O.J., said Pardo, who fondly recalls getting Paula's help in convincing Simpson that jackalopes – a jack rabbit with antelope horns – really exist.

“O.J. once saw a stuffed jackalope in a store and I'd convinced him they were real,” Pardo said. So at the restaurant, we got Paula's staff to serve O.J. a bowl of what they said was “fried jackalope.”

“O.J. used his fork to push the meat around, and then he tried it,” said Pardo. “We were trying so hard to keep from laughing, we nearly burst.”

“Now O.J. keeps telling his prison pals that he ate fried jackalope at Paula Deen's restaurant. They keep telling him there's no such creature, but to this day O.J. insists they're real.”

Deen's TV apology was FAKE, voice expert tells ENQUIRER

Paula spoke to Matt in her recent "Today" show appearance

“She was acting. She wasn't really remorseful”

THE ENQUIRER has caught Paula Deen in a flat-out lie over the N-word during her grilling by "Today" show host Matt Lauer! When Lauer asked how many times she'd uttered the racial slur, a weepy Paula insisted it was only one time – when a black man burst into the bank where she was working and put a gun to her head.

But in a devastating videotaped deposition, uncovered exclusively by The ENQUIRER, Deen testified under oath that she'd used the N-word more often than that.

After admitting in the deposition that she used the ugly slur at the time of the robbery, Deen was asked if she'd said it again.

"Probably in telling my husband," she said, according to the deposition transcript obtained by The ENQUIRER. Then she was asked: "Have you used it since then?" Deen replied: "I'm sure I have, but it's been a very long time."

MEANWHILE, A VOICE STRESS EXPERT WHO analyzed Deen's "Today" show remarks at The ENQUIRER's request confirmed that she lied on the June 26 show.

The expert, Michael Paffmann, uses software to analyze emotion in a person's speech.

"She was acting," Paffmann said. "Her comments were fake, and she wasn't really remorseful."

using the word, she was drinking at the time.

PAULA DEEN isn't the only star whose big mouth has caused a mess of trouble!

The ENQUIRER was first to break the exclusive news that the now ex-Food Network star freely confessed to having used the N-word – but she's hardly alone in the foul-mouthed celebrity hall of shame.

"We live in a world where almost everything is recorded – the good, the bad and, unfortunately, the ugly," a Hollywood crisis-management expert told The ENQUIRER.

Here are some other celebs who have suffered from foot-in-mouth disease:

● "THE PASSION OF THE CHRIST" producer/director Mel Gibson made headlines for his anti-Semitic rant after his 2006 DUI arrest and then again a few years later for using the N-word when he went ballistic on his baby mama, Oksana Grigorieva.

● Paris Hilton – already infamous for a sex tape – further sullied her reputation in 2007 when she was heard exclaiming in a video: "We're like two n*****!" to her sister Nicky while the socialites were dancing to Notorious B.I.G.'s "Hypnotize." Her publicist while Paris regretted

Me & my
BIG MOUTH!

● In 2006, "Seinfeld" star Michael Richards was caught on video confronting an African-American heckler during a stand-up routine in West Hollywood. "Fifty years ago we'd have you upside down with a f***** fork up your ass," he screamed, then repeatedly used the N-word in reference to the heckler.

● In 2007, The ENQUIRER exclusively obtained two telephone conversations in which Duane "Dog" Chapman blasts his son Tucker for having an African-American girlfriend, using the N-word multiple times during the calls. Duane's oldest son Christopher Hecht told The ENQUIRER: "He used the 'N-word' all the time. It was always 'n*****' this and 'n*****' that. He told me, 'They ain't worth a damn. All they're good for is to make white people laugh.'"

Dempsey's sweetheart HITS ROCK BOTTOM

'Can't Buy Me Love' cutie's SHOCKING LIFE OF CRIME

AMANDA PETERSON, Patrick Dempsey's sweetheart in the 1987 coming-of-age film "Can't Buy Me Love," fell into a life of booze and drug arrests.

Now a 41-year-old single mother raising her 6-year-old daughter, Stella, in Greeley, Colo., the former child star has had multiple run-ins with the law over the past decade, The ENQUIRER has learned.

In fact, just last year, on April 3, 2012, she was busted for driving under the influence and possession of drug paraphernalia.

"AMANDA'S STAR HAS DEFINITELY fallen," a close source revealed. "She had a lot of highs in her short career, but her lows have been really low. Last year's arrest really woke her up – the mug shot photo alone made her realize how much she's lost it."

By 1995, after 15 years in the entertainment industry, Amanda was through with Hollywood. She attended Middlebury College in Vermont and got married and divorced twice. In February 2005, she was busted and charged with possession with the intent to sell, distribute or manufacture a controlled substance. She pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two years of probation and 48 hours of community service. She's also been charged with multiple other offenses, including assault, harassment and child endangerment.

At one point, Amanda was reportedly unemployed and broke, living in a home that was provided to her by a local church.

"I think that was when Amanda really hit rock bottom," the source said.

Sources say she'd now love to get back into showbiz.

And her father, Dr. James Peterson, told The ENQUIRER that things are finally starting to look up.

"Amanda has had issues, but she's in good health now and doing very well," he said. "She looks good and she's a lot better."

"Amanda is back on track and taking care of her beautiful daughter."

"STAY sober...we're here for you!" John Stamos tweeted those words of encouragement to his former "Full House" co-star Jodie Sweetin after learning that the troubled 31-year-old had filed for legal separation from DJ Morty Coyle, her husband of a little more than a year.

"John has always had a soft spot for Jodie," said a source. "He literally watched her grow up in the eight years 'Full House' was on the air, and he feels very protective of her, just like a real-life Uncle Jesse. The last thing he wants is to see her spiral out of control again."

AS THE ENQUIRER PREVIOUSLY reported, Jodie – who played adorable Stephanie Tanner on the hit show, which ran from 1987 to 1995 – has battled addictions to cocaine, crystal meth and alcohol in the past. She has worked hard to get sober, but friends fear her most recent marriage troubles – she's been divorced twice before – may cause her to fall off the wagon again.

The actress has two daughters – Beatrix and Zoie. Below, ENQUIRER's previous story on Jodie's drug problems

In paperwork filed at L.A. County Court on June 19, Jodie cited irreconcilable differences as the reason for the split and asked that she be awarded full custody of the couple's only child, Beatrrix, 2, as well as their 2000 Toyota Avalon. She also agreed to pay half of the couple's $200 Kohl's credit card balance, which may hint at potential money problems.

Jodie was married to Morty Coyle for little more than a year. At left, her concerned friend, John Stamos faced a vicious custody battle with second husband Cody Herpin over her then-9-month-old daughter. She told The ENQUIRER they'd seen Jodie snorting lines of cocaine on a North Carolina film set.

"JOHN DOESN'T WANT TO SEE HER go through that again," said the source. "Whatever it takes to help her through this rough time, he wants her to know that she has friends and doesn't have to face these hard times alone."

Jodie, who is currently filming "Defending Santa" with "Superman" star Dean Cain, seems to be handling the situation well. On June 25, she tweeted: "Thank you to everyone for being kind and supportive."

Jen SNUBS hospitalized mom

Nancy, 76, gets NO VISIT FROM ANISTON after breaking pelvis

she was there, Jennifer never called or came to see her. Nancy was deeply hurt. The 44-year-old actress and her mom have had a rocky relationship for years. They famously feuded in 1996 after Nancy discussed the ultra-private actress' life on an entertainment news TV show. Three years later, Nancy made things worse by writing a tell-all book. They appeared to patch things up after Jen's 2005 divorce from Brad Pitt, but things soured again in late 2009 after Nancy discussed the cost of Jen's home furnishings at a party.

Jennifer stayed away from Providence Saint Joseph Medical Center

In 2010, when Nancy broke her hip, Jen let bygones be bygones and bucked up to pay her mom's medical costs.

"I don't know what happened since then that would have caused Jen not to contact her mom after an accident like this," said the source. "I know she's just moved into a new house, but it seems very insensitive and uncaring."

BRUCE JENNER GOES BERSERK!

JUNE 27, 2013

FRAZZLED by never-ending battles with his demanding diva wife Kris, Bruce Jenner finally snapped!

The normally low-key Kardashian family patriarch went ballistic on some photographers, showering them with obscenities – and then he called the cops.

“He was like a wild man!” an eyewitness to Jenner’s meltdown told The ENQUIRER.

But sources close to the reality TV clan say it was actually the stress of his marital life that pushed him over the edge. Bruce and Kris’ latest fight is over his Malibu beach house rental, which he refuses to give up even though she has ordered him to return to the family mansion in Hidden Hills.

fortune at stake, sources say the pressure has been pushing Bruce closer and closer to the edge.

“While Kris is doing her best to keep the lid on their failing marriage, Bruce can’t keep it quiet,” said an insider. “The pressure’s too great for him, and it’s really beginning to show.”

Bruce took refuge in the beach house after new mom Kim Kardashian, her baby daddy Kanye West and their newborn daughter North moved into the family mansion.

KRIS, WHO’S LAUNCHING A new daytime talk show, denies they are getting divorced and is trying to do damage control. But Bruce is said to be so stressed any little thing can set him off.

And that’s apparently what happened on June 27, when Bruce confronted the photogs.

“He leaped out of the car and started screaming, ‘Get out of here! Stop following my family! I’ve had enough! I’m sick of this!’” said the eyewitness.

“His language was awful, and just before he got back in the car, he made an obscene gesture.”

After that, Bruce stopped at a Starbucks and called police, said the source. But there was nothing they could do because the photographers weren’t doing anything illegal.

“It’s ironic that Bruce acted up like this when he and his family have made a fortune from being in front of cameras. He’s obviously under a lot of pressure,” said the source, “but he needs to get his life, and his temper, under control – and fast.”

FBI's MOST WANTED

AMERICA'S
CRIMINALS

The ENQUIRER's ongoing series targets the worst of America's criminals – the lawbreakers currently on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted list. Since the list was started in March 1950, it has featured 494 fugitives. Of those, 465 have been brought to justice, an astounding capture rate of 94 percent. Many were tracked down due to citizen cooperation. If you have seen the man described in this story, call directory assistance and ask to be connected to your local FBI office. Tipsters can also post information anonymously at the FBI's website: www.fbi.gov.

YOUNG MOM RAPED & KILLED – IN FRONT OF KID, 4

Now cops need
YOUR HELP to catch beast who did it!

FVIL Jose Manuel Garcia Guevara brutally raped to death in front of her 4-year-old stepson – and now the FBI needs YOUR help to bring the vicious killer to justice.

Guevara has been on the run since 2008 but was recently added to the FBI's 10 Most Wanted fugitives list. Now they're asking ENQUIRER readers for information that would lead to his arrest. If you know where this brutal murderer is, you could be eligible for a $100,000 reward!

"He is wanted for his role in this brutal attack and murder, made all the more heinous in that he committed the crime in the presence of a child," said Michael Anderson, special agent in charge of the FBI's New Orleans office.

"We are hoping that the publicity associated with this case, along with the significant reward, will lead to his arrest."

Guevara was a 20-year-old laborer working illegally in Lake Charles, La., when, after going on a drinking binge with his buddies, he broke into the trailer park home of a neighbor, 26-year-old Wanda Barton.

WANDA'S HUSBAND WAS AT WORK when Guevara surprised the young mom and her stepson. After raping her, he brutally slashed and stabbed her 16 times, snuffing out her life in front of the terrified little boy.

Wendy's husband, Kevin, recalled: "I was coming home from work, and I called my wife and she didn't answer. I figured she was in the shower or sleeping. So I called back a few minutes later and my son answered and said his mommy was on the floor in the kitchen and she 'wasn't moving.'"

Alarmed, Kevin phoned family members, who found her bruised and battered body.

"She was the best kind of person," Kevin said. "Always smiling,

Authorities remove Wanda's body from her

always happy, always willing to try any new adventure."

After the murder, cops say Guevara fled to Dallas and bought a one-way bus ticket to his hometown of Rioverde, San Luis Potosi, in Mexico. He is believed to still be in Mexico, but authorities say he may have returned to the U.S. using phony documents.

Guevara, a Hispanic male with brown hair and brown eyes, was born on Feb. 11, 1988. He stands 5-foot-6 to 5-foot-8 and weighs between 160 and 180 pounds. He has a tattoo of the letter "J" on his shoulder.

"This is a very mean and dangerous individual," an FBI source told The ENQUIRER. "If you see him, don't try to be a hero. Contact your local FBI office and we'll take it from there."

CALCASIEU PARISH (LA.) SHERIFF Tony Mancuso added: "We are very pleased the FBI has added Guevara to the 10 Most Wanted list.

"I am optimistic this will result in his capture and bring closure to the victim's family, who have been very patient during this ordeal"

CALL it Project Prenup! “Project Runway” host Heidi Klum has agreed to marry her bodyguard boyfriend Martin Kirsten, sources say, but only if he signs an ironclad prenuptial agreement that gives him absolutely nothing!

“Martin and Heidi had a huge fight after she said she probably wouldn’t get married again,” said a source close to her.

“But Heidi doesn’t want to lose Martin because she loves him, and so do her kids.”

THE “AMERICA’S GOT TALENT” judge, 40, and Martin, 45, have exchanged gold “promise” rings, but sources say Heidi won’t walk down the aisle a third time unless Martin signs a strict agreement to keep him from touching a penny of her $70 million fortune.

“That’s all held in trust for her family,” said the insider.

Heidi has a daughter, Leni, 9, from a previous relationship, and Henry, 7, Johan, 6, and Lou, 3, with ex-husband Seal. Celebrity divorce attorney Raoul Felder says Heidi needs the mother of all prenups due to the enormous difference between her net worth and Martin’s.

“Heidi can’t gamble with this,” Felder told The ENQUIRER. “She’ll have to make sure Martin has a lawyer so he can’t claim later that he didn’t know what he was doing.

“Secondly, she’ll have to make him sign a complete waiver of any interest in her wealth, fortune or support payments.”

Another source added: “Heidi’s not stupid. There’s no way she’s going to let a bodyguard sweep her off her feet and then clean out her bank account.”

Pam and Rick Salomon annulled their marriage in 2008 – both citing fraud

ALMOST six years after they were married in a quickie Las Vegas wedding, Pam Anderson and her ex-hubby Rick Salomon are back together – and sources say it’s because Pam missed the sex!

“Pam and Rick have been quietly seeing each other since at least April,” said a source close to the former “Baywatch” babe. “They’ve known each other for more than 20 years, and she says that sex is still terrific with Rick.

“THEY’VE HOOKED UP a lot in the past few months.”

Salomon, a high-stakes poker player, 44, is best known for appearing with his then-girlfriend Paris Hilton in the 2003 sex tape, “1 Night in Paris.”

Pam, 46, and Rick were recently photographed going out for ice cream in Malibu with Pam’s son Dylan, 15, who’s from her marriage to rocker Tommy Lee.

“It’s a very comfortable relationship,” said the source. “There’s no pressure as neither of them are eager to tie the knot again – with each other or anyone else.”

Pam and Rick got married Oct. 6,

2007, at Las Vegas’ Mirage Hotel. As The ENQUIRER reported at the time, the REAL reason they did it was because they were shopping a reality show that included the wedding and the couple’s red-hot h

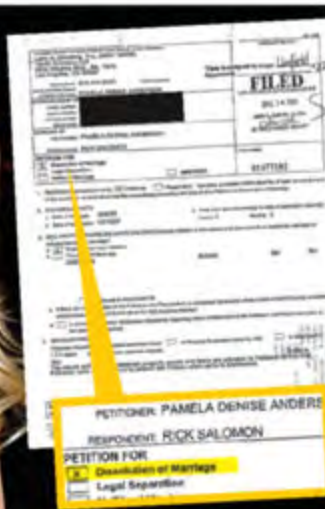

But those plans eventually fizzled – and so did the marriage. By March 2008, the union was annulled after both cited fraud.

Boozing TRIGGERS INSOMNIA

★ For older folks, the secret to a good night's sleep could be as simple as cutting down on drinking.

Johns Hopkins University researchers surveyed nearly 5,000 people 55 and older, focusing on binge drinkers who down four or more drinks in one sitting.

The experts discovered that seniors who binge drink more than two days a week are a whopping 84 percent more likely to have sleep disturbances than those who don't regularly binge.

Common chemical COULD DAMAGE TEETH

Warning, parents! ★ The chemical compound BPA, used in plastics and resins such as food containers and baby bottles, could harm your youngster's teeth.

French researchers exposed the teeth of rats to low daily doses of the chemical and found that within 30 days, damage to the tooth enamel was observed – a condition that also affects some children between ages 6 and 8.

These kids have highly sensitive and cavity-prone teeth which could be associated with other health concerns later in life.

★ Soccer players who often “head” the ball might help their teams score but at the cost of their memory and brain health.

Investigators at Albert Einstein College of Medicine discovered that players who frequently hit the ball with their head do not perform well on memory tests.

What's worse, they suffer brain abnormalities similar to those seen in patients with traumatic head injuries.

Cutting down on use of the maneuver “may provide an approach for preventing brain injury as a consequence of heading,” says Dr. Michael L. Lipton.

HEADS UP FOR SOCCER PLAYERS

New use for TRANSPLANT DRUG

A new use for a drug by the Food and Drug Administration may reverse the progress of heart disease in seniors.

★ Scientists treated older mice with age-related heart disease with rapamycin, a medicine used to help prevent rejection in organ transplant patients.

In the pioneering study, the drug either slowed or actually reversed heart disease, extending the lifespan of the mice.

More research is needed, but scientist Simon Melov of the Buck Institute for Research on Aging in Novato, Calif., declares: “This study provides the first evidence that age-related heart dysfunction can be improved even in late life via appropriate drug treatment.”

★ There's a tasty way to help prostate cancer patients live longer.

Researchers with the University of California in San Francisco studied some 4,600 men with prostate cancer that had not spread.

They found that patients who substituted healthy vegetable fats – such as olive and canola oils, nuts, seeds and avocados – for animal fats and carbohydrates had a markedly lower risk of their cancer turning lethal.

Researcher Erin L. Richman says the findings “support counseling men with prostate cancer to follow a heart-healthy diet, in which carbohydrate calories are replaced with unsaturated oils and nuts.”

CRYPTOGRAM QUOTES

FAMOUS QUOTES FROM YOUR FAVORITE PEOPLE

Cryptograms are coded messages. To solve the Cryptogram, each coded letter must be replaced by the answer letter in the box overhead. When you solve the code for a letter, write the answer letter in the box everywhere the coded letter appears. Look for common words and letter patterns to break the code. Words like AND, I, THE and A are found frequently. Common word endings are ING, S and E.

What's hot
this week

Gorham
and Perabo

Covert Affairs (Season Premiere)

Tuesday, July 16, 9 p.m. ET, USA Network

Annie (Piper Perabo) and Auggie (Christopher Gorham) go under the covers tonight as they begin a very hot romance. Meanwhile, Henry Wilcox's (guest star Gregory Itzin) predictions about the chaos about to befall CIA headquarters in Langley begin to come true. To discover who's dirty and who's not, Annie flies to Colombia where she finds Auggie waiting to help her on what will be a very tense trip. Bullets fly, blood and secrets are spilled, new twists emerge and a key character makes a startling revelation that rocks the agency in this thrilling and suspenseful season opener.

Suits (Season Premiere)

Tuesday, July 16, 10 p.m. ET, USA Network

Things at the firm just got a lot more cutthroat than usual as under-the-table-deals, power plays, blackmailing, extortion and betrayal between the partners run rampant this season. Tonight, Harvey Specter (Gabriel Macht), who despises the merger with a British law firm, negotiates a private deal with the new Conleth Hill). Meanwhile, Mike Ross (Patrick J. Adams) is committed to making amends with Harvey and with his girlfriend, paralegal Rachel (Meghan Markle), and will go to any extremes to set things right with them both as this well-dressed, written legal drama returns. Gina Torres, Rick Hoffman and Sarah Rafferty also star.

The Georgia
clan is back

Here Comes Honey Boo Boo (Season Premiere)

Wednesday, July 17, 9 p.m. ET, TLC

She's sassy, brassy and gassy! And now you can see, hear and smell the pop culture headliner on (ghost)stinky 7-year-old pageant princess Alana, aka "Honey Boo Boo," and her kooky Georgia clan in two "scent-sational" scratch-and-sniff premiere episodes. What else would you expect from the family that likes to blindfold each other and guess whose bad breath they're smelling? Tonight, the family teaches some pro wrestlers how to really knock out the competition and superfly Alana June makes chunky pork and beans from fresh hog road kill. And the girls get into a greasy mess when they make a butter slip 'n' slide. Watch out and hold your noses because Boo Boo's back!

Debbie Macomber's Cedar Cove (New Show!)

Saturday, July 20, 8 p.m. ET, Hallmark Channel

Andie MacDowell is positively captivating in this charming small-town prime-time soap based on the best-selling book series. Judge Olivia Lockhart (MacDowell) is leaving Cedar Cove for a federal judgeship. But before then, she tries to help a young married couple by holding off ruling on their divorce. Will the extra time make a difference? Olivia also begins a budding romance with the town's handsome new newspaper editor, Jack Griffith (Dylan Neal), who helps her find out the truth about her daughter's much older fiancé. If you miss heartwarming family series like "Everwood," "The Gilmore Girls" and "7th Heaven," visit "Cedar Cove" this summer for refreshing character-driven drama in an idyllic seaside setting.

"UNDER the Dome" is the hottest new TV show of the summer – but some folks are saying that the concept was ripped off from "The Simpsons Movie!"

The series – based on a Stephen King novel of the same name – tells the terrifying story of what happens to the small northeastern town of Chester's Mill when a mysterious dome cuts it off from the rest of the world.

THE JUNE 24 PREMIERE DREW an impressive 13 million viewers, but The ENQUIRER can reveal that when King's book was published in 2009, outraged readers complained that the plot came right from the Simpsons' 2007 animated big-screen adventure, as their town of Springfield suffered a similar fate. King insisted it was just a coincidence and that he'd never even seen "The Simpsons Movie." To prove that he got the idea first, King published the first 60 pages of his book on his website – in the original IBM typescript. The best-selling author claims he actually started writing the story in the 1970s and produced an unpublished version in 1985 called "The Cannibals."

But "Simpsons" producers didn't let King off the hook. They mocked the "coincidence" later on in a 2010 TV episode. Homer's evil-hearted industrialist boss Montgomery Burns begins to seal Springfield with a giant dome while brandishing a copy of King's book but then stops because it had already been done before – in "The Simpsons Movie."

HERE ARE SOME OTHER SECRETS ABOUT THE HIT CBS DRAMA:

MIKE VOGEL, who stars as town outsider Dale "Barbie" Barbara, is a licensed pilot who missed out on playing Captain James T. Kirk in the big-screen "Star Trek" reboot when Chris Pine nabbed the part.

COLIN FORD, a 16-year-old actor previously seen in the big-screen family drama "We Bought a Zoo," plays Joe, a quick-witted teen living in Chester's Mill. He broke into films at age 5 in "Sweet Home Alabama" and once did a photo shoot with Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie, portraying their son.

JON GOSSELIN wants to waltz his way back onto TV – and show up his ex-wife Kate in the process!

The former TLC reality star – whose life has been on a steady decline since "Jon & Kate Plus 8" was canceled in 2009 – is campaigning to hoof it up on "Dancing with the Stars"!

And he's boasting that he could do better than Kate, who was the fourth celeb to be booted off the 10th season of "DWTS."

RACHELLE LEFEVRE, who plays intrepid newspaper reporter Julia Shumway on "Dome" got into a war of words with the execs of the "Twilight" film franchise after she claimed to have been cruelly axed from the wildly popular movies. Producers Summit Entertainment maintained it was nothing more than "schedule conflicts" but eventually blasted Lefevre for having a "lack of cooperative spirit."

The dad of eight has apparently hit bottom after years of scandal and hard-partying, admitting that he's currently living "in the woods" without an actual address.

An insider told The ENQUIRER: "Jon has really been down on his luck since leaving the reality show, and he thinks 'Dancing with the Stars' would be a great way to

"He also thinks he can kick Kate's butt."

In April 2012, The ENQUIRER reported that the 36-year-old was so down and out that his mother moved halfway across Pennsylvania to share a townhome with him. And a few months before that, we revealed that his beloved BMW had been repossessed, leaving him to borrow his mother's beat-up minivan.

"Jon is tired of looking like a deadbeat dad," added the source. "A stint on 'Dancing' would be an opportunity for him to reinvent himself."

HOW TO PLAY

You must fill in every empty square in the Sudoku grid. There's no right way of going about this, but there is only ever one solution. The big grid is split into nine mini-grids. There are nine rows running left to right and nine columns running down. In every row, you must have each of the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. These can be in any order. The same applies to columns and mini-grids: place every number 1 through 9 in each column and in each mini-grid.

Heather Locklear's DRASTIC WEIGHT LOSS

HEAATHER LOCKLEAR has gone from super-sexy to scary-skinny! The former "Melrose Place" beauty recently went on a "no carbs, no sugar" diet to get ready for her new role on the TNT law series "Franklin & Bash," but she took things WAY too far, say pals.

"Heather looked great when she initially met with the stars and the producers of the show, so you can imagine how shocked they were when she showed up looking so rail-thin," said a set insider. "She's never been overweight and never had to watch what she eats, but like all actresses – especially the older ones – she's insecure."

"Heather wanted to make sure her return to TV was memorable, so she cut out all carbs and sugar and the pounds just dropped off. But she's gone too far, and even (her daughter) Ava, begged her to stop losing weight."

The 51-year-old actress – who's 5-foot-5 and normally weighs as much as 120 pounds – is barely tipping the scales at 100, says the source.

about her mother's health that she asked her dad – Bon Jovi rocker Richie Sambora – to step in.

"Heather admitted she got carried away and blamed it on the pressure to stay thin in Hollywood," said the insider.

The gorgeous blonde, who plays new law firm partner Rachel King on "Franklin & Bash," joins former "Saved by the Bell" hunk Mark-Paul Gosselaar and "Clueless" actor Breckin Meyer for the TNT series' third season.

And there may be more to her weight loss than she's admitting. Another source says that although Heather is happily dating Beverly Hills plastic surgeon Dr. Marc Mani, she was devastated when former fiance Jack Wagner confirmed in mid-May that he'd been romancing fellow soap star Ashley Jones for more than a year.

Heather and Jack were together for four years before the actress abruptly called off their engagement in 2011.

"Now Heather's convinced Jack was sneaking around while they were still engaged," revealed the source. "Things have been going well for Heather lately, but pals know she's going to treat Jack's admission about him and Ashley as a huge blow to her self-esteem."

BEFORE AND AFTER:
Cynthia Riggs was 18
and Howard Attebery was 28 when they first met in 1950

LONG-LOST LOVE

MYSTERY writer Cynthia Riggs faced a real-life love “whodunit,” and her investigation of some coded notes that mysteriously landed on her doorstep one day led her to a secret admirer from her distant past who soon became her husband!

The case dates back to 1950, when a then-18-year-old Cynthia was assigned to a college work study program at a marine laboratory in San Diego. There, she met 28-year-old dentist Howard Attebery, who was also interested in microbiology.

“I thought he was close to my father’s age,” recalled Cynthia. “But Howard took me under his wing.”

“Most of the guys there were looking for some kind of distraction – and I was it. I was a starry-eyed, naive creature, and this one guy, much older, protected me.”

A GRATEFUL CYNTHIA BEGAN SENDING HOWARD cryptograms on paper towels, using a simple formula of a equals b, b equals c, and so on.

“They weren’t love notes,” she pointed out. “He was just very nice to me, and I appreciated it.”

After four months, Cynthia went back to college. She eventually married and raised five children before divorcing 35 years ago. At that point, she moved to her ancestral home on Martha’s Vineyard, where she runs a bed and breakfast and pens a series of novels called the Martha’s Vineyard Mysteries, featuring 92-year-old amateur sleuth Victoria Trumbull.

Meanwhile, Howard went his own way, got married and had two sons. He worked as a dentist and photographer in California, eventually divorcing.

Couple rekindles romance – 60 YEARS LATER!

More than 60 years passed before Cynthia decided to find out what happened to Howard. So, in January 2012, she Googled him. But the mystery writer made a silly mistake.

“I spelled his name wrong,” she admitted. “So I never found him.”

But fate works in mysterious ways, and in an amazing coincidence, a strange package landed on her doorstep just two weeks later. It contained the coded notes she’d exchanged with Howard so many years earlier along with a new one, which once deciphered read: “I had never stopped loving you. Howard.”

Turns out he’d also Googled her, found out where she was living and decided to send her their notes to express his true feelings for her.

“I was flabbergasted!” said Cynthia. “When I told my writers group about it, they said: ‘This is the most romantic thing ever. It’s every woman’s fantasy to have a man come back into her life after 60 years. You must track him down.’”

The package’s return address was incomplete, but resourceful Cynthia, now 81, eventually found Howard, 90, in California. Sparks flew when they reunited, and they wed on May 25.

“It’s a love story with a little mystery, coded letters and fun thrown in,” said Howard. “All through the years I never forgot her. Now, we couldn’t be happier.”
